Mr. Norris' Brief Speech of Thanks-What Happened Late Yesterday Afternoon.

The quadrennial political activity which intermittently disturbs the peace and quietude of the District of Columbia, and which for the past four months has furnished interesting gossip for the advocates of the various local factions, has become a memory. When at 5:15 o'clock yesterday afternoon the local democratic convention adjourned "sine die" the political wheels in the District of Columbia stopped, and will not turn again until the spring of 1908. Just prior to adjournment the convention selected Mr. James L. Norris to succeed himself as member of the democratic national committee from the District, disposing, for four years to come, of any possible controversy on that score. The six delegates to the national convention to be held in St. Louis July 6 were selected from the list of eight names announced in The the list of eight names announced in The Star yesterday, as follows:

Delegates—James L. Norris, Edwin B. Hay, J. Fred Kelley, Wm. Cranch McIntire, John F. Monahan and John G. Campbell. Alternates—Charles F. Shelton, Frank J. Wissner, Smith Thompson, jr., James A. Watson, Thomas J. Moore and N. Lewis Bogan.

Ready for a Rough-House.

When the convention was called to order in the Lafayette Theater yesterday indications were that the afternoon would be strenuous, and those of doubtful popularity were advised to sit near the wings, that they could better dodge anything which might be hurled from the auditory, whether in the shape of epi-thets or bricks. One Hearst delegate from the nineteenth district was noticed talking to more than a score of rough-look-ing citizens on the sidewalk opposite the theater. Presently the delegate crossed the street, when he was accosted by a reporter for The Star. "Who are those fellows over there?" he was asked.

"Them's me friends," the delegate replied. "They're goin' t' be round, Johnnyon-the-spot, case there's any roughhouse. See! Nobody can't buildoze the nineteent' district."

Such a "rough-house" surely would have resulted had not the Hearst men have resulted had not the Hearst men bolted when the convention was still in its swaddling clothes. The anti-Norris forces, led by Harry Sherman of the Central Labor Union, opposed about every suggestion and ruling made by Chairman Sefton of the primary election commission, and when Sherman and his followers took up their hats and departed the business of the convention became dry and absolutely devoid of excitement. In direct contrast to the condition which direct contrast to the condition which existed earlier, every suggestion from the chair, now occupied by Col. Ed. Hay, was received with open arms, and all votes were either unanimous or by accla-

"Now, if we really want to place strenuosity against strenuosity in the next presi-dential contest," remarked Colonel Hay during a stage of the proceedings when it was necessary to kill time, "why not nom-inate that great hero of the sea, Admiral Schley?"

Norris by Acclamation.

The motion for the selection of delegates o the national convention was made soon after The Star went to press. Mr. Frank J. McQuade of the fourteenth district started the ball rolling by suggesting the convention proceed with the election of delegates and alternates. Before the nominations were made, however, Mr. McQuade obtained consent to suspend the rules long enough to nominate Mr. James L. Norris delegate by acclamation. Unanimous consent was given this suggestion, and Mr. Norris was nominated with extraordinary honor. He smiled and bowed here and there to his friends in acknowledgement of their action, but this would not do. Cries og "Speech, speech," came from all parts of the house. Mr. Norris finally came to the front of the platform amid a din of "All that I can do," he said, "is to sincerely thank you. You have conferred upon me in the past twenty-four years many places of honor—in fact, all that was upon me in the past twenty-four years many places of honor—in fact, all that was possible in the District of Columbia. I want to thank you for the manner in which you have conducted yourselves with reference to each other and with reference to myself. It will be a green spot on my memory. You are my dear friends and fellow-democrats."

The nominations of candidates for delegates were then made. Three ballots were required before the five democrats had developed their superior strength with the voters. Col. Hay, Mr. J. Fred Kelley and Mr. W. Cranch McIntire were elected on the first ballot, and after two more ballots, Mr. John F. Monaghan and Mr. John G. Campbell were selected. During the nominations there was a little tiff between Mr. Frank J. Wissner and Mr. Smith Thompson, the latter having been nominated for delegate by Mr. T. J. Moore. At that Wissner withdrew, but Thompson would not allow him to do so, and insisted on withdrawing himself. The two kept up a seesaw for several minutes. Finally Mr. Thompson withdrew and Mr. Wissner decided to run. Mr. McQuade named William McGann as a candidate for delegate, but McGann refused to be considered as a candidate.

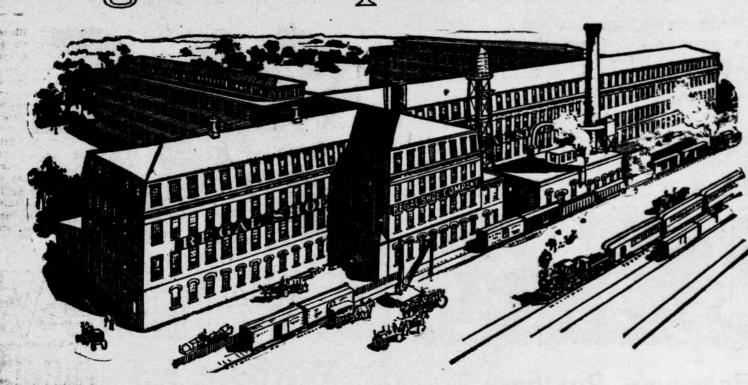

When it came to naming alternates, Mr.

When it came to naming alternates, Mr. McQuade, who nominated Mr. Norris many years ago for delegate to a national convention, wanted to put his son, James L. Norris, jr., in nomination as an alternate, but the young man declined. Charles F. Shelton, Frank J. Wissner, Smith Thompson, jr., Dr. James A. Watson, Thomas J. Moore, and N. Lewis Bogan were chosen as alternates on the first ballot.

Output Doubled

TWO great additions have been built on to the Regal factory at Whitman, Mass., increasing the capacity of the Regal plant 100 per cent. With fifteen new Regal stores opening this spring, and more coming, and the rest of the seventy-two Regal stores doing double business, this increase of factory capacity became necessary in order to take care of demands already existing.

It's all a part of the original Regal program—to manufacture the very best shoes that the very best leather and the highest grade of skilled workmanship could produce; to sell them direct to the wearer-instead of through leather-dealers, wholesalers and retailers-at the wholesale price; and to prove every single claim we make.

We have proved that "Tannery to Wearer" is more than a familiar sentence—a short-cut system that enables us to sell you direct, at $3.50, the equal of any shoe sold anywhere at any price. We have proved by the well-known "Valvic Test" in Regal windows that our Valvic Calfskin is exactly what we claim it to be-porous but water-proof-clean, light, cool and comfortable. We have proved that only good old-fashioned oak-tanned leather is used in Regal soles by the "Window of the Sole"a removable label on every Regal shoe that discloses a section of clean, close-fibred, unblackened, oaktanned leather. We have proved by publicly dissecting thousands of shoes with the famous Regal buzz-saw that Regal vamps are whole, not patched at the toe, that Regal heel-stiffenings, toe-boxes and inner soles are solid sole leather, and that every last bit of Regal material is the best that can be put into shoes.

The largest retail shoe business in the world,—built up on a foundation of one price, one profit, honest material and first-class workmanship.

DISTRICT DELEGATION AND ALTERNATES TO DEMOCRATIC NA-TIONAL CONVENTION .

giving him a representation of eighteen delegates in the temporary organization. Until Wednesday afternoon it had been practically determined Mr. Norris would have twenty-one delegates and Mr. Hearst eighteen, but an incident at the last moment changed the proportion. The original eight districts, carried by Norris and contested by Hearst, included the sixteenth, but when the papers and affidavits were examined by the members of the election commission it was found the charges against the sixteenth district were not specific or in good form. Consequently it was deemed necessary to throw that contest out, leaving Mr. Norris with eight uncontested districts, or twenty-four delegates in the temporary organization.

The Hearst campaign experts from New York, not to be outdone by this move, immediately asked to see the list of districts against which charges, had been filed. It is said that they then informed the commission that there had been filed with the commission, on May 6, a protest against the ninth district, and that the ainth district was not included on the list. Mr. Setton, chairman of the commission, declared no such protest had been filed with him, and a thorough search of all papers failed to reveal anything pertaining to the ninth district. Then the Hearst lieutenants produced an affidavit, signed by a man named Moran, which was declared to be a true copy of an affidavit filed May 6, or thereabouts. The affidavit was sworn to before a notary. This placed the matter in another light, and it began to look as though Mr. Norris on the eve of the convention would be out three delegates in the temporary organization. A special meeting of the commission was called to meet at 4:30 o'clock in the office of Mr. Henry Matthews, one of the members. According to the Story, the affidavit was under consideration, and indications were that it would be recognized as valid, when Mr. Charles W. Slater appeared upon the scene with Mr. Moran, who had signed the affidavit. Mr. Moran was asked if he had signed an affidavit though the Hearst New York lieutenants had been after him for several days to protest his district. This statement uncovered a rather embarrassing situation, and the commission determined to throw out the Moran affidavit and give the district to Mr. Norris. Thus was the final Hearst move frustrated. BOLTERS SELECT DELEGATES.

Hearst Forces Also Adopt Democratic Platform.

Following the recess taken at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon by the Hearst bolters under the leadership of Harry Sherman, delegates and alternates to the democratic national convention were selected as fol-Delegates-W. E. Carr, Hermann J. Schul-

Mr. A. S. Dulin, Mr. W. E. Carr and Mr. T. P. O'Dea were appointed a committee to draft a set of resolutions to be submitted to the St. Louis convention, after which the following platform was then adopted:
The democracy of the District, in convention assembled, reaffirms the allegiance to the principles of the democratic party as enunciated by Jefferson, Jackson and enunciated by Jefferson, Jackson and Bryan.

We arraign the republican party for its wasteful, corrupt conduct of the governments; its reckless expenditures of the money of the people to gratify personal ends and ambitions, and its departure from the safe and conservative principles of government established by our forefathers.

We arraign the republican party for its open favoritism toward great combinations of capital, as displayed in the legislation in which it has engaged and established, fostering criminal trusts and putting into their hands weapons to use against the great masses of the people.

We arraign the republican party for its Zangwill Warns Balfour. A cablegram from London says: The Times publishes the following letter from Israel Zangwill to the editor: "I see from your columns that Mr. Balfour believes the statement that England is catching the epidemic which rages everywhere against the Jew to be quite untrue. As this statement nappens to be mine, permit me to wonder at Mr. Balfour's apparent ignorance of what is going on. I did not, of course, imagine that the leader of a party reconstructed by an alien immigrant's grandson was himself anti-Semite, but the design of a bill and the effect of a bill may be two different things, and, although the government is honorably free from anti-Semitism, the aliens bill was inspired by anti-Semites and will reinspire them. I cited as concurrent phenomena Jewbaiting in Wales, Jew boycotting in Ireland and anti-Semitic pamphleteering in Scotland.

"The whole country shows signs of infection. How then can my diagnosis that England is catching the epidemic be quite untrue? For a statesman who would regard anti-Semitism as a most serious national misfortune, Mr. Balfour is peculiarly careless in the neighborhood of gunpowder." was himself anti-Semite, but the design of
